VIOLENCE FREE MINNESOTA

VIOLENCE FREE
MINNESOTA

Violence Free Minnesota is a statewide coalition of over 90 member programs working to end relationship abuse across the state.

PROACTIVE LEGISLATIVE AGENDA

$15M Annual Increase in Base Funding to Crime Victim Services

In collaboration, Minnesota's crime victim coalitions request the State increase the investment in victims/survivors and the programs that serve them.

Programs need additional government funding in order to provide critical safety services to survivors and their children. This funding would help fill the direct needs of programs and survivors by providing direct client assistance to survivors, competitive wages for direct service staff, hotel stays, culturally responsive programming, prevention programming, and more.

Administered by the Department of Public Safety's Office of Justice Programs (DPS/OJP)

SUPPORTIVE LEGISLATIVE AGENDA

Survivors Justice Act/Resentencing Bill

Allows judges to take the domestic abuse experienced by someone who committed a crime into account when determining their sentence; and allows someone already serving time for a crime they committed in connection to their own abuse to apply to have their sentence reduced in light of the abuse.

Many incarcerated individuals are victim/survivors of domestic and sexual violence. According to the ACLU, nearly 60% of people in women's prisons nationwide - and as many as 94% of some women's prison populations - have histories of domestic and/or sexual abuse prior to incarceration. For some incarcerated survivors, early victimization can be a catalyst for behaviors that entangle them in the criminal justice system as young people. For others, the crimes that they are serving time for are directly linked to an abusive relationship, coercion, and threats of violence.

Ending Revocation for Technical Violations

This bill would end the practice of sending people to jail/prison for technical violations; a technical violation is a violation of a condition of their release, not a new crime. A violation of a condition of release is better addressed through community-based services and programming, as opposed to confinement.

Housing and Economic Justice Policies

- Reform Minnesota's Eviction Laws
  - Protect the rights of survivors to access affordable housing by passing legislation to require increased notice prior to an eviction and more accessibility to eviction expungement.

Survivors face evictions based on factors beyond their control and tied directly to the abuse they suffered. Evictions are often filed with so little notice that there is no time for a survivor to access the legal and financial assistance they need to prevent an eviction. And once an eviction is on a survivor's record it can create insurmountable barriers to new housing. We must pass legislation that requires landlords to provide increased notice prior to filing eviction, prevents eviction filings from being added to a tenant's public record, and provides more access to eviction expungement. Passing these common-sense eviction reforms can stop survivors from being wrongly evicted and unfairly denied housing.

SUPPORTIVE LEGISLATIVE AGENDA

- End Source of Income Discrimination for Minnesota Renters
  - Stop discrimination against survivors who use vouchers and other forms of financial assistance to access safe and affordable housing by amending the Minnesota Human Rights Act to prohibit source of income discrimination. Housing benefits, such as vouchers, provide critical financial support many survivors need to leave an abusive situation. Yet landlords can - and often do - deny rental applications from voucher holders, leaving many survivors unable to locate affordable housing and can lead to them choosing between homelessness or returning to an abusive situation. This type of discrimination has a dangerous impact on survivors and must be prohibited.
- Create Safety Leave Protections for Survivors in the Workplace
  - Ensure that survivors can take “safety leave” from work without the risk of losing their jobs or income. Survivors experiencing abuse are often forced to relocate, seek legal protections in court, seek counseling, and connect with other services to protect themselves and their families. To address these safety concerns survivors often need to take time away from work, but under current law there are no protections for them to do so without losing income or risking job loss. Passing Paid Family and Medical Leave and Earned Sick and Safe Time laws that include coverage for “safety leave” from work for survivors can ensure that survivors will not be punished for securing their basic safety and wellbeing.
- Allocate Funding to Support Affordable Housing for Survivors
  - Dedicate funding and resources to create and support affordable housing for survivors. Housing instability and homelessness among domestic violence survivors is a public health emergency that must be addressed. Domestic violence is one of the five key reasons why Minnesotans experience homelessness-creating a crisis for women and children, particularly those from Black, Indigenous, and People of Color communities. To ensure that survivors and their families can leave abusive situations without facing homelessness, the State must prioritize funding to support housing for survivors:
    - Victim service providers must be funded to provide trauma-informed housing advocacy services for survivors.
    - Funding must be allocated to create and sustain flexible housing options for survivors, including permanent and transitional housing units with survivor-centered supports.
    - Culturally specific programs must be funded to provide culturally appropriate housing options and programming for survivors from historically marginalized communities.
